Explore the charm of 3 Waldruhe Heights, tucked away on the back side of Jack London State Park in a community once known as the little town of Switzerland. Just 10 minutes from quaint Glen Ellen, this home features breathtaking million-dollar views of the Sonoma Mountains, offering a tranquil & picturesque setting. This unique residence combines historical allure with modern comforts. It started as a cabin and has been cleverly repurposed to include large, welcoming living spaces and a huge extra area upstairs that's perfect for various uses. The expansive outdoor covered patio is the real gem, providing an ideal spot to take in the sweeping views & relax. With its close proximity to wineries, cultural spots, & fine dining, it isn't just about having a place to stay it's about embracing a lifestyle. This home offers privacy, comfort, and a connection to nature, perfect for anyone looking to retreat from the fast-paced world. The property also boasts a spacious yard with numerous zen spots, sheds, & a storage container for storing outdoor gear or creating your own peaceful retreats. With long-standing neighbors and many homes still within the original families, this area offers a rich sense of community and historical significance, making it an exceptional place to call home.
